

Logged in as Nineta Hrastelj

Log out

Feedback from:

European Chemical Society (EuChemS)

EuCheMS, the European Association for Chemical and Molecular sciences, representing chemical societies across Europe, and by extension, some 160,000 chemists, researchers and scientists, strongly supports the automatic mutual recognition of diplomas across Europe. We are glad to see steps being taken by the European Commission in this direction.

EuCheMS and the European Chemistry Thematic Network Association (ECTN) have over the last couple of years developed a system which seeks to have chemistry degrees recognised at a Europe-wide level. Eligible candidates can obtain a EurChem designation which aims to help promote mobility of chemical scientists throughout Europe, based on an agreed set of skills, competencies and training. We would be very happy to present this system to the Commission in order to explore all possible avenues to successfully implementing the automatic recognition of diplomas across Europe.

For more information: <http://www.euchems.eu/members-3/european-chemist-designation/>

Report an issue with this feedback

The views and opinions expressed here are entirely those of the author(s) and do not reflect the official opinion of the European Commission. The Commission cannot guarantee the accuracy of the information contained in them. Neither the Commission, nor any person acting on the Commission's behalf, may be held responsible for the content or the information posted here. Views and opinions that violate the Commission's feedback rules will be removed from the site.